1-3 January 2021

God of this new year,
God of this new breath:
as we meet this day
with relief and hope,
with sorrow and with grief,
may our bodies find the strength to endure an extended separation.
May our eyes begin to see a coming season of reunion.
And may our hearts provide the courage to create encounters shaped by joy
and relationships filled will grace.
Amen

4 January 2021

God of fresh starts,
God of enduring truths:
As we push out into this near year with a clinging caution and lingering trepidation give us the nudge
to roll up our sleeves
to meet our challenges with hope
and courage;
and with a renewed desire to see in each other the truth and joy of our inescapable interdependence.
Amen.

5 January 2021

God of these twelve days,
God of these twelve months:
May our times of rest restore us.
May breaks from work
rekindle our passions.
May changes of view
replenish our imaginations.
And may the hope, peace, joy and love given at Christmas sustain us throughout the year, so that the good news born to us might live more fully in our flesh.
Amen.

6 January 2021

God of the magi,
God of the guiding star:
we give thanks for the wisdom to see that you came not for one but for all;
and that our salvation arrives
from beyond ourselves,
our private spheres of influence, the traditions we know by heart.
May we be willing to step further out and become followers
of something greater,
worshippers of One born far away from realms
we've personally mastered;
asleep in the crèche of the whole.
Amen.

7 January 2021
God of our fragile democracies,
God of our peaceful transitions:
be with us.
Free us from divisive ideas of freedom;
Empower a bravery that unites.
May our lands and our homes Safely house dissenting views and welcome our better angels so that the fuller truth
of a greater union
might be secured.
Amen.

8-10 January 2021

God of the resilience we build,
God of the community we create:
may what holds us together not push others away.
May our finding a common purpose not rely on naming a common enemy.
And may our held beliefs be not in what we want to be true but in what you reveal to be right:
a love that undoes us
by leading us to love others
as we love ourselves.
Amen.

11 January 2021

God of our honest concerns,
God of our lingering joy:
as holidays become memories and our resumption of work falls back into rhythm, may we not forget
the moments that restore us, nor put away the gifts that give a healthy balance to our life.
May we bring into this new year
a pattern of self-care that keeps Christmas continuing,
as a glimpse of something better,
as a way to live today.
Amen.

12 January 2021

God of a deep and deepening peace,
God of a calm that steadies our pace:
may we take whatever moment we need to gather ourselves
for the journey ahead.
May we feel the rock
of your presence beneath us;
the assurance of shelter
you provide in embrace;
and the promise of company gathered close by your spirit;
so that as we approach
the unknown ahead
we remember a strength
that can never give way.
Amen.

13 January 2021

God of tunnelling roots,
God of winter growth:
beneath the surface,
and when the light is less available,
the trees and shrubs use their time to strengthen themselves.
Reaching out and feeling forward, they connect themselves more assuredly to their surroundings.
May we use this time
in a similar way,
so the spring that arrives finds us already in fuller bloom.
Amen.

14 January 2021

God of a mother’s instinctive compassion;
God whose piety is an impulse to kindness:
our societies are reflections of ourselves.
The brokenness we lament out there in the world mirrors all the fractures within.
May your maternal instinct to redeem us,
through lessons of repentance and forgiveness,
restore the bonds between us,
so we can reveal both the hurt and the healing.
And then, may a love like her love at our birth begin our new life together.
Amen

15-17 January

God who calls us to follow,
God who invites us to question:
you allow us to come as we truly are
and to see beyond our limited view.
As we relocate ourselves within the reach of your grace, may our beckoning connections lead us from our set positions so we can gain a fuller sense of the good news we still can hear.
Amen
18 January 2021

God in a stranger’s hello,
God in a raised hand of greeting:
those simple gestures,
be it a glance toward a passer-by who looks back with a nod or the friendly question about what breed of dog you’ve got there, give us moments of connection and remind us of days to come when instead of passing by or getting only as far as small talk, we will be able to draw close and learn more from each other.
Until then, we give thanks for that stranger’s hello and the greeting we offer in kind.
Amen.

19 January 2021

God of life,
God of a child’s questions about God:
let us take comfort in the fact that we do not have all the answers.
Allow our lack of knowledge and our dependence on faith reassure us.
If we could understand it all,
it wouldn’t be worth knowing.
If we could contain all that is,
there would be less room for hope
and no room for curiosity.
And it’s through the curious questions that we grow. And find your life.
Amen.
20 January 2021 (repost from 3 November 2020)

21 January 2021

God in catharsis,
God in the part of us we call soul:
when we find a spirit of gratitude, joy is not far away.
May we, as we give thanks for the goodness still within us and in the lives of those around us, return to states of unity, and in the work of being with and for one another, may we weep with those who weep, and rejoice with those who rejoice, and find ourselves again, out of many, one. Amen.

22-24 January 2021

God in our prayers for Christian unity, God in our prayers for human unity: in the humbling of yourself we were exalted; in seeing equality with others we approach something more divine. May we discover in the emptying of ourselves a way to come together in a fuller human likeness. Amen.

25 January 2021

God in the comforting blanket, God in a new day’s adventure: we give thanks for reminders of your perennial grace, and the surprising joy that can greet each morning. We pray for those whose reserves are low and whose anxieties are high, and ask that today we might lend as we are able, receive as we need, and arise with a sense of what is newly possible together. Amen.

27 January 2021

God who is older than then, God who is newer than now:
we give thanks that you and your truth do not need our protection.
We do not need to preserve or defend
what is always true,
and forever discovered:
that in our life and in our death
we belong to you;
that in our life and in our death
we belong with each other.
Amen.

28 January 2021

God who sees through our weaknesses,
God who sees through our strengths, this constant becoming is something we learned from you.
You love us not as a perfect treasure held firm in time,
but in a relationship
that changes and surprises, disappoints and perseveres.
Help us to see
each other’s strengths as shelter and our own weaknesses as invitation.
Amen.

29-31 January 2021

God of our spirits, clean and unclean;
God whose authority heals:
as this Sabbath comes,
let us sit and consider what teaching still astounds us.
Is it the lesson of disappointment?
A cautionary tale of unmet hopes?
By your grace may it be the good news of life;
a power that can silence our fears.
And in being drawn out
from the places we hide,
may your healing amaze even us.
Amen.

1 February 2021
God of the home we know, God of the home we seek:
we give thanks
that a part of the human condition is the hope, the sense, the lingering feeling that even though this world is not as it should be,
a better world exists,
a different future is available,
a home for all of us
waits for all of us,
and today can be a part of getting there.
Amen.

2 February 2021

God in the turning to spring,
God in the waiting together:
we give thanks that even
in separation;
even in this drawn out distancing,
we make sense of this life and mark the passing of time not only as individuals in our own situations,
but as part of a greater collection of your people, alive and alert in this world.
May we enter this season
all the more aware
of fellow travellers;
of other pilgrims on the road.
Amen.

4 February 2021

God who is found
in the Word become flesh,
God who is found
in what words won’t express:
we give thanks that silence and art and movement
help us make sense of life in ways that thinking and reasoning
and masterful theses
will always fail to achieve.
Help us balance ourselves between creating and consuming so we can find deeper wisdom in the gift of simplicity, in the work of being fully alive.
Amen.

5 February 2021
(with reference to Mark 1:29-39)

God in the healing of Simon’s mother-in-law, God in the city gathered close at the door:
free us from our fever,
cure us of our disease.
When we return
from our deserted places,
may it not be into patterns of inequality,
but into habits of mutual service.
And in silencing divisive voices within us may we not quiet that searching plea for justice and peace and connection;
for the healing your message proclaims.
Amen.

8 February 2021

God of the psalms of joy,
God of the psalms of sorrow:
we note that part of being human is acknowledging the brokenness, in the world and in ourselves;
and that part of being human is to love ourselves as you do, and to recreate with
from all the broken bits
a new us and new world.
Amen.
9 February 2021

God of bursting early bulbs,
God of links to last year’s growth:
stored within us
are lessons and corrections, a-ha revelations and moments still taking on meaning.
As we open ourselves up to a brand new spring, may we display the colours we’ve hidden inside; and may the rooted life we hold in our cores ground us well for all coming seasons. Amen.

10 February 2021

God of the exposure that protects us, God of the vulnerability that heals us: We give thanks for boundaries that keep us healthy and safe particularly at times of great risk. Yet we know that our bubbles present their own kind of harm. When we find ourselves cocooning in comforts and withdrawing from difference, may we free ourselves from the traps of contentment. Move us to the edge of ourselves, where notions of self-sufficiency can be popped, and our interdependence with others can be restored. Amen.

12-14 February 2021

God in the silence that speaks of grief, God in the silence that speaks of awe: we acknowledge the loss that comes when teachers and friends disappear from our view. The agony of Elisha is felt to this day. But we acknowledge, as well, the gift of the mantle that falls to us: the gift of learning; the life of service that is ours to take on. May we see as the clouds clear, your presence remaining with us, preparing us for a message still to be told
of life rising up from the dead.
Amen.

22 February 2021

God who knows that even our good intentions can lead us astray; God who shows how the voices of others will call us back:
we have come to a point when the choices seem to be yelling our opinions
just to be heard,
or keeping quiet in hopes of drawing no attention.
Help us find a better way and a space shared by all of us where we can listen and be heard, where we can learn and add value,
where the way forward draws from experiences we gather together.
Amen.

23 February 2021

God who continues to call for justice;
God whose justice is linked to mercy:
we have wrongs to be righted,
and corrections to be made.
May they never be pursued with an eye that glorifies punishment, but with minds that envision restoration and reconciliation.
May justice fully arrive not with fear or with threat, but in the hope
of our own wrongs being made right;
our desires corrected toward kindness
Amen.

24 February 2020

God of those who lead by learning, God of those who guide by helping:
we give thanks for things settled, for hurts that have healed; but the end of an ordeal for one can mean its continuation for another.
If and when a peace is imposed rather than co-created, it may be called a peace by some, but is truly a peace for none. And so we pray for rest, not in a sense of completion, but with the hope that, rested, we can continue forward together toward your lasting shalom.
Amen.

25 February 2021

God in daffodils waiting to burst, God in lambs coming close to their birth: there is pent up excitement, a year’s worth of release, so many are long to see. But such times are not for us to control. The miracle of spring arrives not on our watch. So even if the end of this pandemic winter disappoints us with further delay, may we know of the life still at work deep within us waiting for our moment to emerge.
Amen.

26-28 February 2021

God in truth’s open declarations, God in truth’s quiet rebukes: it is in our private relationships and in the wider connections that we we lose our life and find yours. When we pull others aside may it not be to convince them we are right; may it instead help us to turn our minds to higher things:
to the divinity at work in the life of the whole.
Amen.

1 March 2021

God of this twelfth month, God of this next minute: may our warped sense of time, be it sped or slowed, never prevent us from counting each moment as the open chance to be in communion with you and with our neighbours; May this lifetime be marked not by days or years but by gestures of kindness that grow stronger with age. Amen.

2 March 2021

God of a familiar light, God of a heavy familiarity: as we return to days like last year’s days, so much seems eerily the same and everything slightly different. This mix of comfort and discomfort highlights the change in ourselves, the power of our perspective and the difference our attitude makes. Help us turn our weariness into readiness; our hesitance into curiosity; our ending into beginning; so this heaviness becomes light. Amen.

3 March 2021

God of those in love again with their own home towns; God of those coming to terms at last with home-grown divisions: In the work of bringing more peace to the world we begin with peace in ourselves.
Remind us that where each of us starts affects what we see,
and who we will meet,
and what obstacles there are to overcome.
May we never forget that when we come together,
we have travelled different roads;
and may we then have a greater respect for where we all have been,
and what feeling at home can mean.
Amen.

4 March 2021

God of early morning birdsong,
God of creatures creating their future:
there is a seasonal rhythm and a yearly pattern that points to a continual cycle.
We give thanks that this is more than simple repetition, or perpetual sameness.
There is this forward drive,
a pull into coming days fuelled by hope and possibility,
a desire to be a part of something more;
the instinct to build a nest
for a life that’s yet to come.
Amen.

5 March 2021

God of temples and houses,
God of markets and bodies:
we have crowded our lives
with a clutter of desire.
If zeal and anger can be righteous, may they drive us to clear out the tangled mess that we house of religion and faith,
of money and worth,
of purity and holiness.
And then may we find an undying presence
at home once in ourselves;
a temple that needs no protection.
Amen.
8 March 2021

God of the histories we tell,
God of the histories we don’t:
on either side of a border, you are there.
May we, in living out our faith, never pretend that there is a way to make ourselves purer,
or more righteous,
or holier
by separating ourselves from those that you will never stop loving.
Amen.

9 March 2021

God in the welcome
that lets all feel at home, God in the courage
that lets us let go:
if and when we know we are loved,
we can feel comfortable
in our own skin;
at peace in whatever turmoil arises;
and able to step out into the unknown.
We will know that no matter
what may occur,
what is true will endure:
God will be.
Love will win.
And we will belong with God.
Amen.

10 March 2021

God who teaches in infinite ways,
God who listens with a desire to know:
we communicate imperfectly,
with words misunderstood,
with thoughts not fully formed, with incomplete views
from our narrow perspective.
But you have a taught us a language of kindness,
a practice of empathy,
a vision of people living with and for each other.
Let us come alongside and learn.
Amen.

11 March 2021

God of those who remain
separated from loved ones;
God of those who feel split in their emotions of ‘home’:
we pray for ourselves,
divided from each other,
not only by distance,
but by borders and histories,
by politics and identities.
With your help, may we find ourselves more at home with each other.
May we close this separation, through a grace we extend,
through the love we ourselves have received.
Amen.

12-14 March 2021

God with us in a year of separation,
God with us in a future of reconciliation:
you tell us that your story is incomplete without our story.
So may we resist the temptation to separate our story from others’, or to listen only to tales that make us hero or victim.
May we gladly hear a fuller story, told as much in the lives of those we call other:
those we have hurt without knowing,
those whose hurts we have failed to acknowledge.
And then may we see ourselves and as part of the life you alone can bring to completion.
Amen.

15 March 2021
God of big hills to climb,
God of little steps of courage:
help us light a candle in the darkness and begin this journey
with renewed hope.
You know of the valleys
and the false summits ahead, and the pasture that waits with still waters.
Lead us on through the night though we know there be danger, for we cannot remain where we are.
Amen.

16 March 2021

God in this long, overdue cry;
God who can break our cycle of tears:
as we allow ourselves the freedom to make sense with emotions
the madness of an abnormal year, may we also confront
what we allowed to seem normal in the years that have led us to now.
May the honesty in tears join your river of justice:
a stream of righteousness that flows to a city
where the vulnerable are safe, where we measure strength
by its kindness, and where you will be waiting to wipe tears from our eyes.
Amen.

17 March 2021

God of Patrick, who was born in Britain;
God of Patrick, who died in Ireland;
God of Patrick, whose life continues to lead us into conversations about where and to whom we belong, and how you surround us
with your presence,
and how you yourself
are defined by relationship:
as we continue this life together, bound by story and enlivened by myth,
may we find more to say about a divine power that lies within every one.
Amen.

18 March 2021

God of long and good lives,
God of new and good life:
there are creatures now stirring who will continue to breathe long after some here are gone.
And so we give thanks not just
for our unpredictable years, but for our part in a steadier hum of activity:
the life that exists on this planet.
It is the only place we are sure this can happen.
Amen.

19-21 March 2021

God of the grain that falls to earth,
God of the fruit that grain will bear:
you have created us to create life, even as we lose it;
you have given us a gift of love that grows the more we share it.
May we, as single grains of life,
not hold our love within,
but cast it wide
and lose ourselves
so new life can begin.
Amen.

22 March 2021

God of those who always expect a happy ending;
God of those who no longer do:
our faith is not here
primarily for the good times.
to assure us we deserve whatever life we have.
It is always here
so that it also here for moments when the ending is in doubt, when answers are not clear, when what seems truly certain is an uncertainty in this world.
Give us faith to believe, not in the guarantee of a happy ending but in the continuation of a story which always answers with good news.
Amen.

23 March 2021

God in the inches
our children have grown;
God in the extra ring
tree trunks now include:
people are celebrating
a second birthday in lockdown.
We are approaching a second Easter still in this tomb.
With your help,
may this span of time
which we only fully see once past,
remain with us
as a strengthening inner core.
Amen.

24 March 2021

God of those made to feel they somehow don’t belong; God of those who may actually believe it:
change our hearts,
our minds, our ways.
We are different:
wonderfully and fearfully made.
There is no actual connection between difference and danger, but for the imaginary monster
we create in ourselves.
Change our hearts,
our minds, our ways,
so all are made to know
we belong.
Amen.
25 March 2021

God of a better together,
God of our better being as one:
there are structures and systems we don’t know how to replace.
Assumed to be fair,
and meant to empower,
they continue to stick people in the same stuck positions.
And so there is fear of others’ power rather than true power-sharing.
There is an official recognition of only one voice – one speaking with false certainty, as if one voice could speak for all.
Or for you.
God of a better together,
God: may we be better being like you.
Amen.

26-28 March 2021

God of Bethphage and Bethany, God of triumphs marked by humility:
as we enter a holy week,
we note how you entered a village.
As we set time aside
we note how each moment can be sacred.
Help us on this journey
and in this work
of blessing the ordinary,
of anointing our days each day.
Amen.
